

A Review of Shadow of the Hawk

By Jack

I really enjoyed Shadow of the Hawk. It talked about how the Mound Builders, a Native American tribe, would build huge mounds out of earth. Some of them were in the shapes of animals or were just designs. Nobody quite knows how they did it, because you have to view most of them from the air to see the shape. One idea is that they did a small drawing and then enlarged it, using stakes to form the area of the mounds. Some mounds were burial mounds, and others were ceremonial. They would also bury pieces of jewelry and little models in the mounds. I found Shadow of the Hawk very interesting and informative.

A Review of Oars, Sails and Steam

By Jack

I really enjoyed Oars, Sails and Steam. It was all about how ships evolved from logs into sailing ships into steam boats and submarines. The first submarine was used in the revolutionary war and although it didn't really cause much damage, it gave the British quite a scare! My favorite type of ship was the Mediterranean Carrack. I thought it was a very cool ship, and it had cannons too! I found Oars, Sails and Steam to be very interesting and informative.

A Review of Shadow of the Hawk

By Jack

I really enjoyed Shadow of the Hawk. It talked about how the Mound Builders, a Native American tribe, would build huge mounds out of earth. Some of them were in the shapes of animals or were just designs. Nobody quite knows how they did it, because you have to view most of them from the air to see the shape. One idea is that they did a small drawing and then enlarged it, using stakes to form the area of the mounds. Some mounds were burial mounds, and others were ceremonial. They would also bury pieces of jewelry and little models in the mounds. I found Shadow of the Hawk very interesting and informative.

A Review of Oars, Sails and Steam

By Jack

I really enjoyed Oars, Sails and Steam. It was all about how ships evolved from logs into sailing ships into steam boats and submarines. The first submarine was used in the revolutionary war and although it didn't really cause much damage, it gave the British quite a scare! My favorite type of ship was the Mediterranean Carrack. I thought it was a very cool ship, and it had cannons too! I found Oars, Sails and Steam to be very interesting and informative.