

A Review of the Ends of the Earth Exhibit

The Ends of the Earth exhibit was about the North and South poles and the animals that live there. I really enjoyed learning about Polar Bears and Penguins, who are the two animals you first think of when you think of the North or South pole. (Trivia Question: How many penguins are there at the North pole? Answer: 0, they live at the South pole!) There are other animals that live at or migrate to or from the poles, such as the Narwhal and the Arctic Tern. And here you can also slide like a penguin and learn how big an iceberg actually is! It's really fun!
