

Mega worm squirmed in its burrow when it felt the sunlight shining down on it. It looked up, and sensed three things staring down at it. Then it felt the things grabbing it and lifting it up into a bucket. This was disgraceful, and Mega worm couldn't imagine what the other worms would think.

Mega worm was loaded onto an enormous scale, and weighed. Then it was gently tipped out of its bucket, onto a tarp. Mega worm tried to burrow into it, but it wasn't porous enough. The things stretched Mega worm out and measured it. Then they pulled the tarp away, and Mega worm happily dug back into the soil, neither knowing nor caring about why it had been captured and then released. In fact, the moment it was back in the soil, it forgot all about it.