

Jack's Nature Journal
6-11-09

This morning it was constantly threatening to rain, the clouds overhead rolling and milling about, the trees dripping onto us, but it didn't rain. The sky was eight oktas full of stratus clouds. The wind was coming from the East at 3.1 mph, the air pressure was 30.01 inHg, the humidity was 87% and the temperatures were 67.3°F and 19.6°C.

This morning we heard many birds and saw a few, including some robins. We also saw a small, very bouncy Wood Frog and some native flowers coming up.