On our walk this morning, the sky was bright and sunny. The clouds, which covered 1 okta of the sky, were puffy cumulus clouds. The wind was coming from the N at a high of 11.9 mph, and this made it seem cold even though it was very warm today. The temperatures were 72.3°F and 22.4°C, the humidity was 23% and the air pressure was 30.21 inHg.

This morning, we saw some catbirds, some barn swallows in the field, some goldfinches, a bluebird, some cowbirds and a mockingbird leading us away from its nest.
