

A Review of Professor W's Earth and Science Circus

By Jack

I really enjoyed Professor W's Earth and Science Circus. It was hilarious! Professor W invites a scientist who is an expert on the environment to speak at the Science Club. But the scientist can't make it, and sends his neighbor, Meatloaf, instead. Meatloaf is left with instructions to use the Commonsensinator, a strange machine which gives points for Professor W (and Meatloaf) to illustrate, such as the fact that nothing ever goes away, it only changes form. They also explained why recycling is the most economical way to get out of our garbage crisis. They illustrated with acting, singing, circus tricks and magic tricks. I found it extremely funny, and I even got picked pick to help demonstrate something! It was performed at the Hacketstown Hatchery.
